Rakesh Khatri (Nest Man Of India)

Delhi has to traverse a long way before the condition of birds, especially sparrows improves. The diminishing effects have been higher than the replenishing measures. Through this workshop, we've been given the opportunity to try and reverse the current scenarios. Let's do our bit in making a safe abode for nature's finest creation.

The population of the sparrows is decreasing day by day due to the reduction in green spaces and increase in unplanned and unfriendly architecture. Increase in pollution ultimately disbalances the harmony within nature causing serious ecological disturbances. Delhi, the capital of India, has witnessed an alarming decrease in population of sparrows and is replaced greatly by rock pigeons. With the support of Mr. Rakesh Khatri, we Zakirians should come together to build a home for this diminishing treasure.
